

Annapolis Parrot Head Club
P.O. Box 4414
Crofton, MD 21114
www.annapolisparrotheadclub.com

August 28, 2011

Contact Sharon Magill 410-507-7334 or doctoriiii@yahoo.com for more information

Event flyer included with this release

Media welcome to attend this event

For immediate release

Can you golf like a Parrot Head? That's what the Annapolis Parrot Head Club wants to know!

Golfers are invited to join the Annapolis Parrot Head Club for the Parrotpalooza Golf Tournament on Monday, Oct. 3, at the Walden Country Club, 1500 Riedel Road, Crofton, Maryland, to find out. APHC and the Crescent City Jaycees Foundation of Southern Prince Georges County are hosting a best ball golf tournament to benefit the American Cancer Society's Look Good...Feel Better program to assist women affected by cancer treatment and the CHADD Summer Camp Award to help send children affected by ADHD to camp.

"We are hoping for a great turn-out of golfers," said APHC President Sharon Magill, O.D. "These are really important programs for members of our community that we are supporting with this tournament. We're looking for golf foursomes who want to come out, have a good time and play some golf with a great bunch of people."

Registration opens at 8 a.m. and golfing begins with a shotgun start at 9 a.m. Golfer goodie bags, lunch, refreshments and awards are included. There will also be a silent auction and hole-in-one give-a-ways.

Golfers can sign-up individually or as part of a golf foursome. This is a captain's choice scramble, so experience with golf clubs is not needed – just the desire to have a good time. The tournament is open to everyone. Costs are $110 for individual sign-up and $400 for a foursome. To sign-up, visit the Annapolis Parrot Head Club online at www.annapolisparrotheadclub.com.

"We're just looking to have a good time," Magill said. "This is low-stress golf. Come out, meet some new friends and spend the day golfing for a purpose with us."